Club funds: £4,324.12

Chairman's Report:

The Chairman noted that he had been absent due to being away on boats. There had been no further events beyond the two main events already held: the Manx SOTA activation and the Tynwald Day stall.

E-mail security and website security were discussed. The club continues to receive phishing attempts and attempts to interfere with the website, so members should continue to be careful with club e-mail and website access.

The club also needs to regain/control access to iomars.im.

Membership:

Membership matter to be followed up.

Review of Recent Events:

SOTA: One operator was present on each Manx SOTA summit, and every summit was successfully activated. Not all activations were achieved by contacts between all the Manx stations, but there were a number of chasers from the UK. There was also interest from Gold Duke of Edinburgh participants, with curiosity about Wainwrights on the Air.

Good relations were maintained with the tram operators, including the possibility of using an engineering train to get to Snaefell early for future activations. There was no phase noise interference on Snaefell, despite the presence of high-power transmitters.

Tynwald Day: From a public relations point of view, the event was good and successful, with many members of the public stopping by to chat. Tables were offloaded on the Sunday afternoon, and the team arrived at 07:30 on the Monday. Car access was not ideal, but the gazebo worked well. The plot was not very large. 433MHz was tried, and there was good interest in Morse keys.

The Scout tables have been returned to the hall by John.

Upcoming Events and Club Activities:

Possible Projects and Show and Tell:

There was some interest in making a preamp project. Possible show-and-tell topics discussed included aerial rotators, portable operations, and contest logging software.

Mobile Shack:

Keith has the location of the mobile shack and may go to check it out. A date and time need to be picked. Stuart has the keys for the mobile shack. Tuesday 14th at 10:00 was suggested, with John to attend.
